Roosevelt Intervenes In Coal Code Negotiations

PROMULGATE AGREEMENT ON SATURDAY

President Orders Administrator To Reconcile Point Now In Dispute

DETAILS ARE SECRET

Wage, Hour Agreement Reached And Dispute On Closed Shop Settled

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Weeks of wrangling over a bituminous coal code ended today after President Roosevelt intervened and drove a bargain with embattled spokesmen for capital and labor on wage and hour provisions.

The president instructed Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson to reconcile a third point of dispute, over unionization, in a code and submit it to mine operators and union leaders today. Objections, Johnson said, would be received up to 6 p. m. tomorrow and the code would be promulgated Saturday.

The president also decided the administration policy in the case of Henry Ford, who refused to sign the automobile code. It will be simply to await the public's reaction, Johnson announced.

In drafting the labor provision of the coal code Johnson faced the task of reconciling one of the most controversial questions to come before recovery administration.

He indicated he would permit inclusion of a qualifying clause giving employers the right to hire and discharge workers regardless of union affiliations. This clause, incorporated in the automobile charter, caused the deadlock in negotiations for an agreement on the coal code, before Mr. Roosevelt intervened last night and gave Johnson authority to proceed.

The miners' representatives at the White House were headed by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and Phillip Murray and Thomas Kennedy. Spokesmen for the operators were Charles O'Neill, J. D. A. Morrow, R. E. Taggart and J. D. Francis. Johnson and Donald R. Richberg, NRA general counsel also attended.

It required more than three hours to bring about the wage and hour agreement and canvass the open-closed shop dispute. Details of the wage and hour agreement were not revealed, pending announcement of the entire code.

STATE TO GO AFTER TAX DODGERS SOON

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 7.—(UP)—Open season will be declared September 10 on tax dodgers and the bag limit will be unrestricted.

Richard Collins, chairman of the board of equalization, announced today over 100 state highway officers would take the road in every section of the state September 10 seeking out thousands of truck operators who have failed to pay the new license fee and gross receipts tax.

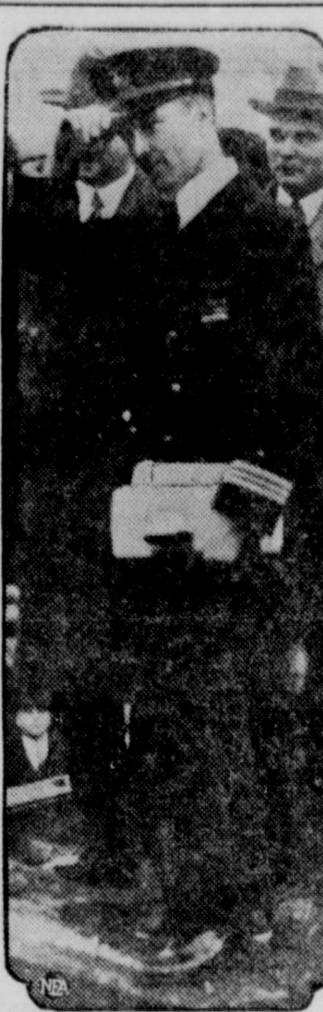

The tax, passed by the last legislature, went into effect June 1. It provides for 3 per cent gross receipts and a $25 license fee on all trucks operated for hire outside of city limits.

ORANGE WOMAN LOSES LIFE IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Mrs. Julia Cummings Killed And Daughter Injured Near Barstow

DEATH, coming with tragic swiftness, yesterday removed from this community one of its most prominent women, Mrs. William M. Cummings, 61, of East Walnut avenue, Orange. Today arrangements were being completed for final rites to be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Gilgolly Funeral home, 307 East Chapman avenue, Orange.

Mrs. Cummings' death, which so shocked her hundreds of friends, came as the result of an automobile accident occurring yesterday morning about 10 o'clock just this side of Barstow. She and her daughter, Miss Cummings, had left their home at 4 o'clock in the morning for the automobile trip to Arden, Nev., where Miss Cummings was to resume her duties as teacher in the Arden school. The cause of the fatal accident has not yet been fully determined, but it is believed that a tire blew out, causing the car to overturn.

Mrs. Cummings' death was instantaneous, and Miss Cummings was badly cut and bruised. She has been brought to her home where she is suffering from the effects of shock and injuries.

Julia Beaumont Cummings was born in Green Bay, Wis., and that was the family home until some 20 or more years ago, when she and her husband and their family came to Southern California. They lived first at Glendale, but a score of

EYES BURNED OUT BY SUN ON DESERT

BISBEE, Ariz., Sept. 7.—(UP)—His eyes feared literally burned out by the blazing desert sun, Morris Addams, former New York newspaperman, was in a critical condition today.

Addams fainted yesterday, presumably from the intense heat, while hunting on the desert. He lay for hours, face to the sun, before regaining consciousness and staggering to a lonely homestead.

His physician said today he probably would have to remove Addams' eyes, as they apparently had remained open throughout his unconsciousness, and had been cooked by the sun.

Addams' face was one large first degree burn, his physician said. Addams had been visiting relatives here, collecting color for western stories.

SANTA ANA BRIDE JAILED AS BANDIT HUSBAND SHOT DOWN

ADMIRAL BYRD SAILS SEPT. 25 FOR ANTARCTIC

Calls To Pay Final Visit To President Roosevelt This Morning

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, polar explorer, announced today that he would sail September 25 from Boston for a two-year exploration voyage to the Antarctic.

Byrd called to say good-bye to President Roosevelt before departing with two ships, the old revenue cutter Bear and the supply vessel Pacific Fir, for Little America, his old base on the Antarctic ice.

"I am going to attempt to explore an uncharted land as large as the United States and Mexico combined," Byrd explained.

He added that he expected to do 10 times as much flying as was done on his previous trip to Antarctica when he flew from his base over the south pole and back.

"I am going to attempt to fly beyond the pole this time," Byrd said, "for there is where the great uncharted area lies. As long as there is such a vast territory unknown by man existing on the face of the globe I believe it necessary to investigate. We will live in an ice age, look for a new continent and at the same time serve 10 to 12 branches of science."

Byrd, who flew over the pole four years ago, said that he was hopeful with his fellow explorers to provide for science some of the missing links in the chain of facts. Harold June will be Byrd's chief air pilot. The admiral will do the navigating and some of the relief piloting.

He revealed that his expedition would be larger than the first one established at Little America, for about two years. He is taking with him 70 men, 150 sled dogs and 14,000 different items of food and supplies.

Byrd said he would fly today to New York City and leave New York tomorrow by plane for Chicago, arriving there to visit his old ship, the City of New York, which is on exhibition at the Century of Progress exposition.

CITRUS AGREEMENT RUNS INTO SNAGS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Disagreement arose today over proposed national citrus fruit marketing agreements at a hearing before the agricultural adjustment administration. The necessity of orange and grapefruit proration caused dissension.

California and Arizona witnesses were unanimous however in the belief that a marketing agreement is necessary to stabilize the orange and grapefruit industry. State Senator J. J. Parrish of Titusville, Fla., said that "protection" had stopped in to reduce Florida production by 20 per cent and Texas production by 80 to 90 per cent. He urged that the marketing agreement be held up until next year "or until necessary."

NRA Insignia Adopted In Hoover's Home

PALO ALTO, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Former President Herbert Hoover has adopted the NRA blue eagle in his San Juan Hill home on Stanford university campus. Paul Sexton, Mr. Hoover's secretary, replied to a query that the Hoover household had "signed up."

VINES, TENNIS KING, LOSES TO 'BITSY' GRANT

National Champion Victim Of Upset; Allison Also Defeated

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 7.—(UP)—Bryan ("Betsy") Grant Jr., of Atlanta, defeated Ellsworth Vines, defending champion, in the fourth round of the Men's National singles tennis championships. The score was 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

Adrian Quist, Australian youngster, provided the tournament with another stunning upset when he defeated Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., America's No. 2 player, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2, in a fourth round match.

Playing on a court outside the stadium, and with more than 2000 spectators looking on, Grant, who ranks no better than thirteenth in the National list, humbled the once mighty Californian with an ease that was ridiculous.

The champion was absolutely helpless in the face of Grant's all-court attack. While Vines at no stage of the match played the tennis she showed in coming to world supremacy last year, he played good tennis. But good tennis was not enough to beat the little five-foot, 120-pound Southerner. Grant was hot-red hot, and everything he tried—chops, volleys, smashes and drop-shots—worked perfectly.

After the first set, which saw Grant handle his tremendous forehead as though it were nothing, Vines seemed to lose confidence. As the match progressed a look of bewilderment spread over his face, and at the end he seemed in a daze.

Lester Stofen, California giant, went into the quarter-finals with an easy 6-0, 6-4, 6-4 victory over H. G. N. Lee, England's No. 3 player.

Great Britain sent its No. 1 player and Davis Cup hero into the same round when Fred Perry defeated Keith Gledhill of Santa Barbara, Calif., 6-2, 4-6, 1-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Gregory Mangin joined the ranks of giant killers when he defeated Jiro Satoh of Japan, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2 in the magnificently contested battle.

Frank Shields of New York, America's chief hope for the title, now that Vines is gone, gained the round of eight with a 7-5, 6-2, 6-3 victory over Japan's No. 2 player, Ryosuka Nunoi.

Tugwell, recognized as a key figure in President Roosevelt's "New Deal" government, denied he was considering a plan under which tobacco, food and other industries would give up half of their national advertising as economic waste and apply the money on the agricultural department's scale of payment to farmer and employee.

LAMSON CALM WHILE STATE QUESTIONS HIM

Stanford Press Executive Says He Always Thought Wife Murdered

SAN JOSE, Calif., Sept. 7.—(UP)—There was never any question in David Lamson's mind but that his wife, Allene, was murdered, he testified during cross-examination today at his trial on charges of murder.

The admission came after the young Stanford university actor-playwright had answered a series of rapid-fire prosecution questions intended to clear up alleged discrepancies in his direct testimony.

Lamson's own attorney, Edwin M. Rea, asked the question after Prosecutor Allan P. Lindsay subjected the defendant to searching cross-examination.

"They have put much stress, David, on the fact you said your wife was murdered," Rea said. Did you believe she was murdered?" "I did," Lamson replied.

"I had no idea of an accident," he added.

The defense had indicated throughout that it would contest the state's charge of murder over frustrated love with counter testimony that Mrs. Lamson's head was crushed when she fell in her bath.

Before Lindsay turned the witness over to the defense, he questioned Lamson on his experience in acting.

"I had a leading role in high school plays; since then I've played minor roles," the accused man replied.

Court observers have marveled at Lamson's self-control during cross-examination. He appeared calmer than the usually deliberate Lindsay.

The defense next struck a blow at the testimony of Frank J. Taylor, Los Altos writer, who told of a conversation with Lamson in which the young husband confided his wife was dissatisfied, a separation was near, and that Lamson himself didn't care what happened. Taylor was the state's strongest witness.

"Did you tell Frank Taylor you and Allene were having any trouble in your domestic relations," Rea asked the defendant.

"I did not," Lamson replied.

He explained under further questioning that he had told Taylor that Mrs. Lamson wanted a change from her position with the campus Y. W. C. A. as the job appeared temporary and their infant daughter, Gertrude Allene, needed a change of climate.

Tells Police Will Reveal Crime Life

Burmah Adams Says She Will Tell All She Knows Of Robberies, Holdups

BELIEVED to have been shaken from her stoic denial of a reign of crime participated in by herself and husband of five days, Burmah Adams White, Santa Ana girl and bride of Thomas White, shot to death yesterday by police indicated today that she would tell all she knew of the series of holdups and robberies that has held the Wilshire district of Los Angeles in a grip of horror for approximately one month.

After hours of grilling at the hands of detectives during which she parried charges that she and her husband had robbed and wounded Crombie Allen, retired Ontario newspaper publisher, and a Cora Withington, school teacher, on the night of August 16, the 19-year-old blonde assertedly broke and told police:

"You have been nice to me so I will tell you all I know."

The crime career attributed to White, 31-year-old ex-convict and his bride ended yesterday in the hall of a Los Angeles apartment house when White fell dead in a gun battle with detectives. Mrs. White was arrested when she attempted to throw herself from a three-story window after witnessing the death of her husband.

Married Friday The couple was married here last Friday by Justice of the Peace Chris Pann. The rites were held just a few hours after White and his girl are said to have held up C. C. Lewis, of 227 1/2 South Western avenue, and White had fired a bullet at his victim. The bullet went wild and imbedded itself in the side of the Lewis home.

The woman, Burmah Arline Adams, before her marriage, is well known in Santa Ana, having lived here for many years and attended the Santa Ana high school. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Adams and made her home with her parents at 231 East St.

NAMES SAILOR IN DEATHBED REPORT

NEWARK, Cal., Sept. 7.—(UP)—A death-bed statement today named Manuel Viveras, 22, of the U. S. Navy, as the slayer of his step-father and step-brother on a ranch near here, police announced. Viveras is missing.

The victims were Joseph Faria, 50, and his son, Joseph Faria Jr., 29. Both died early today at Highland hospital, Oakland.

Before he died the younger Faria allegedly told police Viveras came to their ranch, invited him to take a ride in an automobile, and shot him in the back. The sailor returned to the ranchhouse and shot the older man, according to authorities.

Viveras and his brother, Frank, 16, fled from the ranch. They are believed headed for Southern California where they have relatives.

COAST GUARD DESTROYERS LEAVE TODAY

Roosevelt Calls On Diplomatic Resources To Avoid Any Intervention

MARINES ARE READY

Latin American Countries Asked To Aid In Order To Avert Drastic Acts

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(UP)—The navy department today drew eight additional destroyers into its preparations to protect American lives in Cuba while the coast guard ordered a similar number of its destroyers to participate in the movement.

The navy department announced eight coast guard destroyers had been ordered from Norfolk, Va., to Cuban waters where they will report to Rear Admiral C. S. Freeman aboard the cruiser Richmond and in command of the special service squadron.

Eight naval destroyers were ordered from Newport, R. I., to home stations to disembark naval reservists and take aboard their regular crews of 85 men each. They then would be available for instant movement to Cuba.

The Roosevelt administration called upon its every diplomatic resource today to avoid American intervention in Cuba while American warships steamed toward Havana and marines waited for sailing orders at Quantico, Va.

President Roosevelt, without surrendering America's right to intervene, sought the co-operation of Latin America to make it unnecessary. But his subordinates had gathered an armed force of sufficient magnitude to effectively take over the island.

Swanson En Route Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson was en route to Cuba on the cruiser Indianapolis. At the marine barracks at Quantico, maps of Havana and Santiago were distributed to officers of the seventh regiment of marines, 1250 officers and men, ready to sail for Cuba at a moment's notice.

President Roosevelt's dramatic and unprecedented move in seeking the co-operation of Latin American countries left a favorable impression on the acting chiefs of the Argentine, Brazilian, Chilean and Mexican embassies, who were unexpectedly summoned to the White House last night. Other Latin-Americans were consulted today.

Practical results, for the moment, were unpredictable. The danger of street fighting in Cuba, with attendant danger to Americans, was not foreseen.

RAIL PRESIDENTS DISCUSS NEW DEPOT

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Presidents of three western railroads were scheduled to meet here today to iron out final plans for constructing a new $10,000,000 union passenger station.

Carl R. Gray of the Union Pacific, Samuel E. Bledsoe of the Santa Fe and A. D. McDonald of the Southern Pacific, said they hoped to reach an agreement over final plans within three days. Each road has submitted a proposition as to how the station should be built.

The three executives were sanguine in reporting a business upturn.

NAZI DEATH LIST INCLUDES EINSTEIN

LONDON, Sept. 7.—(UP)—The Daily Herald asserted today that the German Nazi organization "Fehme" had placed Albert Einstein, world famous scientist, on its "death list" and had offered 1000 pounds ($4555) to the man who "silenced" him.

Gamblers Ask Injunction Against D. A., Sheriff

TANGO GAME HEARING SET FOR SEPT. 15

Following closely on revelations that operators of "tango" games in Southern California had raised a $10,000 fund for the purpose of defeating this form of gambling, a petition was filed in superior court here yesterday afternoon in an effort to restrain the sheriff and district attorney from halting operation of a similar game on the state highway in this county.

The suit asking a temporary restraining order pending hearing on a plea for a permanent injunction was filed by George S. Levine, Harry Shutz and C. Horowitz through Cressaty and Elstein, Los Angeles attorneys. The suit named the county of Orange, Sheriff Logan Jackson and District Attorney S. B. Kaufman as defendants. The defendants were ordered into court Friday, September 15 at 2 p. m. to show cause why the injunction shall not be issued. Pending the hearing the establishment on the highway will remain closed on orders of county officials.

Last week the opening of a "tango" parlor on the state highway between Santa Ana and Anaheim, was announced. Deputies from the sheriff's office visited the place on the date of the scheduled opening and would not permit the operators to open the resort.

In their petition for an injunction the would-be operators of the place declared that on August 30, the date set for opening the alleged "game of skill", several deputy sheriffs were stationed in front of the resort on the highway with instructions to immediately padlock the establishment should an attempt be made to open it for business.

The deputies, according to the complaint notified the operators of the resort and their employees that they would be arrested upon opening of the place. The complaint alleges that operation of "tango" parlors is a lawful business under the laws of the state and the ordinances of Orange county and that the deputies, in preventing their opening had committed a lawless act.

The complaint alleges that Levine, Shutz and Horowitz are lessees of a store room on the highway having leased the property and caused to be erected "a game for the amusement and recreation of persons thereat." They alleged that their investment in erecting the games was not less than $2000 and the lease was valued at $2500.

WILL ROGERS says:

SANTA MONICA, Sept. 7. (To the Editor of The Register:) Even experts don't know what the weather will do. Even millionaires don't know what Wall Street will do. There is millions of things that nobody knows anything about in advance, but the dumbest guy in the world knows that the minute a Latin-American country has a revolution that it is just the opening game of a series of 'em. You know we got the wrong impression of a revolution. They was raised on 'em down there. They love 'em. It's their only relaxation. Sure people get killed sometimes. If it's a first class Grade A revolution, they may lose about as many as we lose over our week-ends by trying to pass somebody on a turn. There is one thing about a Latin-American country, no matter who is running it, they are always run the same.

Yours,
WILL.

VISCOUNT GREY PASSES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Severely criticizing Grey's policies as foreign minister, Lloyd George wrote: "The impression of Lord Grey as a 'strong, silent man' has become a little mellowed."

Grey's hesitancy and lack of wisdom, he said, contributed to his failure to avert the World War.

Forced into seclusion in his last years because of failing eyesight, that left him almost blind, Lord Grey attained an expert knowledge of the Braille method of raised letters and numbers for the blind. He instructed himself.

He was married twice, but childless. Both wives died. There is no heir to his viscountcy, which he accepted in 1916 when he retired as foreign minister. He would not accept an earldom, the next highest rank in the peerage.

NAME WALKER TO FULLERTON SCHOOL BOARD

Appointment of Ernest R. Walker of Yorba Linda to the Fullerton high school board was announced today by County Superintendent of Schools Ray Adkinson. Walker will fill the unexpired term of J. A. Prizer, who resigned. Prizer's term of office would have expired May 1, 1934.

Prizer retired from the school board when the legality of his position was questioned because of the fact that he was a resident of Placentia which recently withdrew from the district to form a separate high school district. Arthur Staley, also a member of the Fullerton board is a resident of the Placentia district.

Staley has not resigned and, according to information obtained today, opinions differ as to whether or not such action would be necessary. Verling Kersey, state superintendent of public instruction, has indicated that in his opinion Staley should resign, it is reported. The matter of the legality of Staley's position was taken up with Assistant District Attorney W. F. Menton, legal advisor to the county superintendent of schools.

Menton, in an opinion given to Adkinson, held that Staley's resignation is not necessary. Adkinson indicated that he would follow the advice of his legal advisor.

LOCAL GIRL IS MRS. READ SAYS ARRESTED AS ACTRESS BROKE SPOUSE KILLED UP HER FAMILY

Andrews place until a few months ago when she moved to Los Angeles.

At the time of the shooting Mrs. Pearl Adams, mother of the girl, was in the Whites' apartment where she had been staying for some time, and was taken into custody but was released a short time later.

When securing their marriage license White gave his occupation as a salesman and his address 236 South Coronado street, Los Angeles. The bridge gave her age as 19 years, her occupation as cosmetician and said that she lived at the same address. It was at this address that bullets from police guns cut short their married life.

Prior to moving to Los Angeles the White girl had been employed at many Santa Ana soda fountains and later took a course in beauty culture. She also had been employed in several local beauty shops.

According to information obtained here this morning the girl met White just a few weeks prior to their marriage. He was released, on parole, from Folsom prison, April 24 where he had served a sentence for robbery. He originally had been sentenced to serve a term at San Quentin but because of his incurability was transferred to Folsom.

Attempts Suicide
Following the shooting to death of White yesterday Mrs. White is said to have attempted to leap from a window but was restrained by police officers. White's sister, Mrs. Violet Dillon, Mrs. Adams and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Freericks were taken into custody last night for questioning. Mrs. Dillon and Mrs. Adams were taken from the apartment where the shooting occurred and the Freericks were arrested when officers found Mrs. Freericks' name on a driver's license in the possession of Mrs. White.

The Santa Ana girl has been identified by several victims as the blonde woman who drove the automobile used by White when he held them up. They also identified the dead man as the bandit who had robbed them.

Last night Mrs. White was placed in the Los Angeles police "shadow box" — under brilliant lights and positively identified by three victims of her husband, as the woman who drove the bandit car.

"Unquestionably, that is the girl," said Leslie Bartel of 256 South Kenmore avenue.

Girl Identified
"I'm positive it is she; there could be no mistake," said his companion, Miss Gertrude Host, 325 1-2 South Rampart boulevard. These two were held up in front of Miss Host's home August 16 by "a tall man and a blonde girl." The bandits took their money and car.

A few minutes later, on Occidental avenue Third, the same pair, robbed Crombie Allen and Miss Withington. After taking their valuables, the man fired a brutal shot which went through Miss Withington's temple, ruining the sight of one eye, then passed through Allen's throat. Lewis also identified the woman as the driver of the car used by the bandit who robbed and shot at him in front of his home. The Lewis robbery and shooting occurred the night before White and the Adams girl were married here.

A revolver found on White after he had been shot to death by police was declared to be the gun from which the bullet that wounded Miss Withington and Allen had been fired. The gun, a .38 caliber, was sent to the ballistic department and Captain Moxley, in charge of the department fired a shot from it and then examined the markings on the bullet.

Uses Same Gun
"They are the same as the others I have looked at—it's the one that wounded Crombie Allen and Miss Withington and the one found in the wall after the Western avenue attempt at robbery."

White was shot to death yesterday, before the eyes of his bride by Detectives Bergeron and Anderson of the Los Angeles police department after they had trailed White and his bride to their apartment by their automobile, driven by Mrs. White. They had located the car in a garage near the apartment house and, disguised as mechanics, waited in the garage until 3 p. m. yesterday when the girl reappeared. She drove the car away and the detectives trailed her to the Coronado street apartment house.

As the detectives followed her up the front stairs White appeared from a rear stairway, carrying a bag of groceries. The girl became alarmed and called to her husband to "look out!"

Fires on Officers
The detectives called to White to put up his hands as they were police officers. Instead of surrendering White dug under his coat and whipping out a revolver, opened fire on the officers.

His first shot missed the detectives, grazing Anderson's head, then Anderson and Bergeron both opened fire. One bullet knocked White's gun from his hand and an instant later he fell to the floor with two bullets tearing into his body near the heart.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7.—(UP) —Mrs. Marion Read thought the romance between her husband, Alfred C. Read Jr., San Francisco broker, and Claire Windsor, blonde screen actress, ended when she buried certain loveletters between them, but she learned later her hopes were in vain.

The petite wife of the broker gave this testimony today under cross-examination in her suit for $100,000 against Miss Windsor for alleged alienation of affections. "I knew Al had been running around with Miss Windsor in New York, but he told me there was nothing serious in it," Mrs. Read said. "A month later, however, I found a letter from Miss Windsor to my husband in the wastebasket of Al's room in a Hollywood hotel, where we were staying."

"I mailed it to my mother," Mrs. Read said and her husband quarreled all the way from Hollywood to their home in Oakland after the discovery of the letter. In San Francisco, Mrs. Read recited, Read went to his office in San Francisco and got a package of Miss Windsor's love letters and turned them over to her.

"We took these letters to the Clift hotel that night and burned them," Mrs. Read testified. "Al agreed to give up the actress and stop writing."

"Later, however, I learned that he still was corresponding with her and we quarrelled again and separated for two weeks."

Mrs. Read said she and her husband quarreled all the way from Hollywood to their home in Oakland after the discovery of the letter. In San Francisco, Mrs. Read recited, Read went to his office in San Francisco and got a package of Miss Windsor's love letters and turned them over to her.

"I certainly did not," was the reply. "I learned that Miss Champion was forwarding Miss Windsor's letters to my husband and I asked him to discharge her, which he did."

Mrs. Read smiled when Pierce attempted to link her name with that of Harold Belasco, one time business associate of her husband. "Isn't it a fact?" Pierce questioned, "that during a party in your honor at the St. Francis hotel, you invited him to share your room all night? And when he informed you he was your husband's best friend, and refused to enter the room, didn't you tell Read he had insulted you and insist on Belasco's discharge?"

MORE VESSELS DISPATCHED TO CUBAN WATERS

cans and other foreigners, remained a possibility that would force Mr. Roosevelt's hand at any conference.

A possible result of his conference may be a public appeal to the Cuban people by some of the larger Latin-American nations. Cubans may be urged to form a government which can maintain order, thus making intervention unnecessary.

The president delved into the speeches of his last Democratic predecessor, Woodrow Wilson, to find a pattern for his "new deal" in diplomacy. Two decades ago, Wilson, speaking in Mobile, Ala., laid down the principle that Pan-American governments should consult on common crises.

Never before has this policy been followed. Because of its special treaty rights under the Platt amendment, involving the right to intervene to preserve order, this government has held its relations with Cuba did not concern other countries.

Sees Help
No cooperation in military intervention was asked by Mr. Roosevelt. If worst came to worst, he made it clear, the United States will shoulder responsibility alone. But he drove home earnestly that he did not want to intervene and that Latin-Americans should help him make intervention unnecessary.

A picture of the epochal White House conference was given the United States.

Four envoys of American powers drew their chairs around the president's. He sketched what had happened in Cuba—the fall of Machado, the creation of the

from the window when police grabbed her. "I don't want to live!" she screamed. "I want my husband. We were married last Friday."

"bridge gap" Cespedes regime, and its collapse before the threat of a group of non-commissioned army officers.

Reports of Communism in Cuba were dismissed lightly by Mr. Roosevelt. The real menace, not to Americans alone but to all foreigners as he saw it, was that subordinate army officers now in control of Cuba might not be able to set up an effective government.

Street fighting and chaos might result. Thus the United States might be forced to intervene.

America, he was reported to have said, did not want to put a single marine on Cuban soil. It played with intervention before—in Nicaragua, in Santo Domingo, in Haiti. It was easy to send marines to Latin America, hard to withdraw them.

But in the face of chaos what could be done? The problem was to foster the establishment of a Cuban government capable of preserving order. How could that be done? The diplomats saw objections. The envoys of their respective countries in Cuba were not accredited to the new Cuban regime. They would not address it. Nor was any other way seen to persuade the Junta to cooperate in setting up a more effective government which presumably would mean drawing new officials into the regime.

A public appeal to the Cuban people by other Latin-American countries to unite in forming a strong government might be the answer, some diplomats thought. They promised to consult their public announcements from the Latin-American capitals may follow.

The president made it plain he wanted the Latin-Americans to know all that was happening. They were free to examine the state department's reports from Havana at all times.

The diplomats were touched by Mr. Roosevelt's appeal. But whether it could check intervention was an unanswered question. Observers here believed that if Mr. Roosevelt's venture in Cuban diplomacy succeeds he will have done much to put down Latin fears of American aggression.

years ago came to Orange county, where Mr. Cummings identified himself with the citrus industry.

Their home on Walnut avenue has been noted for its hospitality, and Mrs. Cummings' friendliness and charm of personality reached out to all who knew her. Her interests have been varied. She was a member of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Santa Ana, and also active in club and social circles. One of her chief interests was found in Santa Ana Community Players' association, and she not only appeared in various major productions with marked success, but was active in every phase of the work. It was she who introduced the Annual Southern California Tournament of One-Act Plays, a feature that has gained attention from every part of the country and has become one of the leading dramatic events of the Southland.

Mrs. Cummings is survived by her husband, William N. Cummings; two daughters and two sons, Miss Margaret Cummings, school librarian at Fullerton; Miss Julia Cummings, teacher of the Arden, Nev., schools; John Cummings of San Francisco, and Douglas Cummings of the home. There are two sisters and a brother also to mourn her loss, the Misses Mabel and Sophie Beaumont of Dupre, Wis., and A. A. Beaumont of Green Bay, Wis.

SEIZE QUANTITY OF BEVERAGE AND EQUIPMENT

Confiscating 465 pints of beer, a small amount whiskey and assorted beer making equipment and bottles, sheriff's officers swooped down on two alleged bootleggers late this morning and arrested both for sale and possession of intoxicating liquor with a license.

The first raid was made at the home of Samuel L. Ambrose, 73, Ocean and Cypress streets, Garden Grove. Officers searched the house and found 81 quart bottles of beer, 135 pints, one package of bottle caps, a bottle capper and other equipment. Ambrose, a carpenter, had been brewing the beer, officers declared, and is reported to have been a rested and convicted of the same offense a year ago. A heavy blackjack was found on an icebox and felony charges of owning a blackjack may be pressed against him.

The arresting officers, including Sheriff Logan Jackson, Undersheriff C. W. Riddle, and Deputies Art Ellis, Earl Nickles, Fred Humiston and E. E. Perry, then rushed to Huntington Beach and raided the home of Rex V. Bonner, 30, Main and Huntington streets. The officers found 147 pints of beer, three pints of whiskey, three empty five-gallon bottles and five empty one-gallon jugs. Bonner admitted selling the liquor, officers said.

Sheriff Jackson declared that since the new beer licensing law had been enacted for the county, there was no further excuse for selling home brew illegally and that his office would arrest all violators.

STATE MAY SUE TO STOP TIDE LAND LOOTING

Possibility of court action by the state of California to stop private oil drillers from assertedly taking oil from state owned tide-lands at Huntington Beach, loomed today with the arrival in Los Angeles of Webb Shadle, attorney for the division of state lands and in statements attributed to State Finance Director Vandegrift in Sacramento.

Indications are that the suit also will endeavor to collect damages for oil already taken from the tide-lands.

Shadle admitted that his trip to Los Angeles was for the purpose of conferring with John W. Maltman, county deputy attorney general in charge of the Los Angeles office.

He refused to comment on the conference, but admitted that it had to do with the situation at Huntington Beach. An investigation into asserted draining of oil from state-owned tide-lands is already well under way, Shadle said, and probably will be completed within 10 or 12 days.

Vandegrift announced yesterday in Sacramento that the question of the state's legal rights has been laid before Atty.-Gen. Webb, and an opinion is expected within a week.

The state finance director, in describing operations in the Huntington Beach oil sector, said private drillers, by using a device which swings their wells off the usual vertical position and toward the ocean, are draining valuable oil resources from the state's tide-lands. He said the finance department has been watching the situation closely for two years and now is determined to prevent, if legally possible, further taking of state property without reimbursement to the State.

FARM WOMEN WILL NAME DELEGATES

Representatives to the home department regional meeting will be named tomorrow at the monthly meeting of the Orange County Farm Bureau home department, according to Mrs. L. A. Bortz, chairman of the group. The meeting will be held in the office of the Farm Bureau and will start at 9:30. The regional meeting will be held in San Bernardino September 25.

In addition to appointing representatives to attend the meeting in San Bernardino plans for the year's work will be discussed and Mrs. Bortz is urging that every farm center be represented at the session.

The action was taken at a meeting of the group at the Women's clubhouse in Orange. Copies of a resolution which was passed by the body, are to be sent to the board of supervisors and to the members of councils of county cities.

Members of the committee drawing up the resolution were District Attorney S. B. Kaufmann, Chief of Police James M. Pearson of Fullerton and Constable Jess Elliott. They were appointed by Floyd Howard, of the association, who was in charge of the meeting. Sheriff Logan Jackson made an informal talk regarding the radio station at the request of Howard.

The speaker of the evening was Tom McFadden, Anaheim attorney, who talked on "The Cure for Crime." Americans, the speaker declared, constantly are improving the strain of their chickens and stock but are unconcerned about the improvement of the human race.

"We are building bigger and better penitentiaries, bigger and better state hospitals and juvenile homes and are concerned with their maintenance and upkeep, but we do nothing to lessen the number of persons sent to these places daily. If exact figures on costs were obtainable, they would prove staggering. No republic can bear up under such a load as that imposed by these costs. Crime has been building up for centuries and while we are concentrating on the reclaiming the criminal we are giving no thought to the prevention of crime."

McFadden expressed the belief that all persons sent to penitentiaries or state hospitals should be sterilized to prevent the reproduction of their kind, and he declared that he believed that the lessening of criminals from such a process would be noted in one generation.

McFadden urged the establishment of a course in civil law and criminal law and its enforcement, for peace officers of the county and the study of the subject of sterilization of the criminal by members of the group, California is one of the most advanced states of the union, he brought out, and it may furnish an example for other states in setting about to find the solution of the cure for crime.

Chief of Police R. F. Richards was the host of the evening with the members of the Orange police commission, Councilmen Ben Dierker and A. H. Helm, Jean Baldwin and Verna Helm, of Huntington Beach, gave several

PEACE OFFICERS ENDORSE POLICE RADIO STATION

The Orange County Peace Officers' association went on record last night as heartily favoring a radio broadcasting station to be built by Orange county for the use of peace officers in policing the county.

The action was taken at a meeting of the group at the Women's clubhouse in Orange. Copies of a resolution which was passed by the body, are to be sent to the board of supervisors and to the members of councils of county cities.

Members of the committee drawing up the resolution were District Attorney S. B. Kaufmann, Chief of Police James M. Pearson of Fullerton and Constable Jess Elliott. They were appointed by Floyd Howard, of the association, who was in charge of the meeting. Sheriff Logan Jackson made an informal talk regarding the radio station at the request of Howard.

The speaker of the evening was Tom McFadden, Anaheim attorney, who talked on "The Cure for Crime." Americans, the speaker declared, constantly are improving the strain of their chickens and stock but are unconcerned about the improvement of the human race.

"We are building bigger and better penitentiaries, bigger and better state hospitals and juvenile homes and are concerned with their maintenance and upkeep, but we do nothing to lessen the number of persons sent to these places daily. If exact figures on costs were obtainable, they would prove staggering. No republic can bear up under such a load as that imposed by these costs. Crime has been building up for centuries and while we are concentrating on the reclaiming the criminal we are giving no thought to the prevention of crime."

TRUCK DRIVER HELD GUILTY IN DEATH CASE

Mike V. Robinson, 27, El Centro truck driver was found guilty late yesterday in department two, superior court, on a charge of manslaughter. This was Robinson's second trial on the charge, a jury having failed to reach an agreement at the first hearing.

Upon his conviction Robinson, through his attorney H. W. Turcotte, filed an application for probation. Hearing on the application was set for September 15 before Superior Judge James L. Allen.

Final arguments to the jury yesterday afternoon were marked by heated verbal clashes between Turcotte, and Deputy District Attorney Lee J. Fris. Turcotte interposed vigorous objection to arguments of Fris when he told the jury that Turcotte had failed to prove defense points promised at the opening of the case.

Robinson was found guilty of having caused the death of H. L. Williams, 27, of El Segundo last July 2 at The Arches intersection of the highway at Newport Beach. Williams was killed in a collision that followed Robinson's crashing through traffic lights with his truck. Robinson's defense was that brakes on his vehicle were faulty. It was failure to prove this claim that was cited to the jury by Fris and drew the fire of Turcotte.

Suit for $20,000 damages was filed yesterday against Miss Cynthia Crow, 18-year-old Garden Grove girl and her mother, Mrs. Clara Crow. The suit was filed in superior court by Paul Watkins, truck driver injured in a collision between his truck and an automobile driven by the Crow girl.

According to Watkins' complaint the crash occurred at the intersection of Ocean Boulevard and Berrydale road on March 17, last. The Crow girl was driving her mother's automobile and, according to the complaint was negligent in the operation of the vehicle.

Watkins alleges that as a result of the accident he had one vertebra injured, received fractures of the pelvis and right knee in addition to cuts and bruises and a severe nervous shock.

Hereafter the regular gymnasium schedule will make it impossible to provide regular time for family use of the pool, the classes being arranged to occupy the physical department to capacity during the evening hours.

The full schedule of gymnasium classes will be started next Monday, it was announced today by General Secretary R. C. Smedley. This involves continuation of the regular classes for men, and the start of the classes for younger boys, older boys and employed boys.

WASHINGTON

TREK

Without any fanfare of trumpet the Federal Emergency Relief Administration is moving at top speed to solve the problem of caring for the army of transient jobless this winter.

Because the floating unemployed start moving toward warmer climates about this time of year, plans are being rushed to have an organization set up to care for them by October 1.

Outright grants of Federal money over and above those for State purposes will be used to foot the bill.

The annual trek of workless hopefuls toward balmy temperatures has taxed resources of the Southeast and Southwest sadly in recent years. Florida and California and their neighboring States particularly have suffered trying to care for these transients.

This year the Tennessee Valley with its Muscle Shoals threatens to add another bad spot.

In spite of all the warning that jobs aren't available there yet for outsiders many are flocking into this region on a forlorn hope.

Under direction of Morris Lewis, who has been attacking this problem for 19 years, F. E. R. A. is creating a system of relief designed to give "individualistic" treatment to the seasonal floaters.

The "passing on" system whereby states in the past have unloaded needy transients on their neighbors is to be abandoned.

This winter an effort is to be made either to find them jobs, send them home or shelter and feed them indefinitely.

States potentially to be affected have been asked to work out programs on a regional basis. When these are presented the Relief Administration will put up the necessary money.

Negotiations are under way with the railroads to get transportation agreements that will send those who merit it back to their homes.

By registering and interviewing these transients at central stations located on arterial highways and at rail centers the Government hopes to determine just how big a job it's up against.

CRIME
Administration leaders privately are fearful their idea of creating an American "Scotland Yard" to combat the crime wave is headed for a few snags.

Refusal of the American Bar association to endorse the proposal gave them a first tip-off of impending opposition.

It seems the lawyers don't relish the thought of giving every police officer a Federal commission. That would wipe out State lines in the matter of pursuit and arrest and make it tough on their clients.

The attorneys can attack the idea on Constitutional grounds. If it should be tried many of them no doubt will.

AL
Those on the inside say NRA had quite a time persuading Al Smith to make his recent radio appeal in behalf of the Blue Eagle.

The "Happy Warrior," so the report goes, originally declined. Then followed some correspondence requesting a personal appointment for one of the NRA sides. Smith replied it wouldn't do any good.

The NRA man persisted. Smith finally agreed to see him.

It was explained to Al that he of all other speakers could best command a huge and attentive radio audience.

The Governor capitulated in the end as all of you know who heard him urge wholehearted support of the Administration's recovery drive.

TREASURY
Treasury officials are doing a little phlegmizing under cover to get a piece of that Public Works money. They want to build themselves a 12-story annex.

They have just discovered that back in the Coolidge administration the plot of ground on which the Department of Commerce building now stands originally was set aside for a Treasury addition. Herbert Hoover, then Secretary of Commerce, grabbed it for his own $17,000,000 masterpiece.

Those now handling our finances think the "injustice" should be remedied.

The Treasury has 12,000 employees working in Washington—more than any other single department. They are scattered all over the lot.

Now along comes the new Procurement Division which will handle all Government purchases and those bureaus in the present main annex are being tossed out to make room.

"If Hoover got away with it, why can't we?" they ask. They already have the site picked out if Public Works Administrator Ickes will only say yes.

TOUGH

One of our London Embassy attaches writes a friend that England has more than the recent Vickers espionage trial to be sore with Russian about.

It seems Britain's ambassadors don't get the best of treatment. Stalin refused even to meet Sir Edmund Ovey, their former envoy, for two years.

On top of this, an exorbitant rental is charged for the Embassy building. Price, quality and quantity of goods and food also falls to suit.

'S tough life.

NOTES

Kate Smith, the radio star, outsmarted General Johnson the other day when he didn't want to pose with her for a news picture.

Kate imposed on his chivalry by drawing the NRA boss to the door to say goodbye, there clasping his hand tightly while the photographers shot.

Budget Director Douglas nearly fell off his chair recently when he discovered the Narcotics Bureau had gotten its budget down to $984,000.

Douglas had turned down the Bureau estimate of $1,518,000 and arbitrarily set it at a million.

Former President Hoover was certainly building for the future when he had the huge Commerce Department erected.

Its miles of office space have been a life-saver for the harassed officials trying to house all the new emergency set-ups.

NEW YORK

By James McMullen

JUMPS

You probably remember the story of the Swede who ran for a ferry boat and found it just leaving the dock.

His companion, already on board, encouraged him by shouting: "Come on, Ole, you can make it in two jumps."

The best posted local authorities say we are applying the two jump system to our recovery program.

The first jump has taken us to the thirty-five or forty-hour week. This is important progress, and probably as much as industry can or will stand at present.

But the best estimates indicate a maximum re-employment of six million people under this arrangement. That makes it look as if a second jump to the thirty-hour week will be necessary if we are to avoid a permanent large scale unemployment problem.

New Yorkers who have worked close to NRA are confident that this is the ultimate answer.

UNIONS

Many business men and manufacturers are playing the NRA straight, place and show as an eliminator of union issues. They are proceeding on the theory that the unions will dry up for lack of nourishment in issues to fight for.

They believe workers will be so pleased with code conditions that they will see no point in union membership. All of which would be quite O. K. with the majority of industry.

That theory might very well hold good if the working week had been shortened to thirty hours. As it is, when the present stage of readjustment is completed, the unions will still have an issue that is right up their alley.

The more far-sighted labor leaders are perfectly willing to let industry kid itself for the present about the weakening of the unions. In fact there has been some pointed shushing of lesser lights who wanted to get noisy now.

The first part of the show has been largely directed and stage-managed by industry, regardless of heartfelt complaints from various quarters about compulsory unionization. Labor's big shots are confident that their turn will come when the second act begins and are willing to bide their time.

This is not to say that the thirty-hour week is likely to become a live issue in the near future. Competent authorities expect it to become important in about two years.

LABOR

A New York analyst says that labor, like all Gaul, is now divided into three parts.

First are the authentic leaders—men like Wolman, Lewis, Richberg, Green, McGrady and David Robertson. Most of the protests they voice against current code developments are made for the sake of the record. Actually they are pretty well satisfied with progress to date and have their eyes on the main chance in the future as described above.

Second are the rank and file of workers. They may not see the problem as a whole, but the government attitude on wages and hours pleases them and the great majority are willing to ride along without raising arguments.

Third are the minor labor leaders who fill the gap between the generals and the privates. Their livelihood depends on the vitality of the unions they represent and they are uneasy about apparent signs of slackening interest. They do not see into the future. Consequently they think it is to their interest to stir up trouble in order to prove their jobs are necessary. These are the boys who may raise plenty of Cain and it will take a firm hand to keep them in check.

LINDERBERG

Aviation insiders say that Colonel Lindbergh has reported to his company the possibility of establishing an all-year air service between Europe and America by way of Greenland. The problem of maintaining regularity remains unsolved.

CHAPLIN

A secret has leaked out of Charlie Chaplin's Hollywood studio. His next picture, now under production, the famous Chaplin moustache will disappear. Why? Because the comedian doesn't want to look like Hitler! The prize gag of the picture will be the shaving off of the comedian's moustache after he looks at a photograph of Hitler. Although it is expected that this stunt will cut off the film's German market.

Chaplin is determined to make what his friends say is his own protest against Hitlerism.

DER TAG
"The German soldier returned victorious from the World war. During the past years the memory of the glorious victory of the German heroes has been boycotted deliberately." Speech by one of Hitler's Storm Troop generals during the Reunion of German War Veterans. The speaker's name? August Wilhelm, Prince of Prussia, pet son of the ex-Kaiser.

HARTFORD, Conn., (UP)—It may be there are more male swimmers than female in Connecticut waters, or that the male, trying to show off, takes more chances, but of the 97 drownings in Connecticut in 1932, only six women lost their lives, according to a survey.

VINES GLOOMY: TIDBALL BOOKS PASSAGE HOME

BY HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(UP)—A few leubs and volleys from the Men's National tennis championships at Forest Hills:

Jack Tidball, intercollegiate champion, thought so much of his chances against Jack Crawford that when he took the court against the Australian he had his train reservation for California in his hip pocket. . . . he booked passage the minute he saw who his third round opponent was. . . . Berkeley Bell did the same thing in 1931 when the draw threw him against Jean Borotra, but Bell upset his own plans by winning. . . . Someone asked Crawford how his teammate, Vivian McGrath, pronounced his surname and Crawford replied: "Vivian calls it 'McGraw', but it'll always be McGrath to me!"

That two-handed backhand of McGrath's, by the way, is probably the fastest shot in tennis. . . . When he whistles one with both hands the ball travels even faster than Vines' drive and Frank Shields' service. . . . McGrath explained that he places his right hand on the racket merely as a steadying influence. . . .

Vines, once the king of them all, thinks he has little chance to retain his title. . . . "I've lost all the fight and pep I ever had," he explained. . . . "I can't explain why but I do know it will surprise me if I keep my championship. I'm a one-to-five shot at the best!"

Lester Stiefen, the California redwood, has joined the society of charm wearers. . . . He carries a small ivory goat mounted on an ivory pedestal into all his matches. . . . It was presented to him by his god-mother. . . . Dick Murphy, one time intercollegiate champion, is fed up on tennis and expects to chuck it soon for a job in a bank. . . . Murphy was beaten in the second round by "Betsy" Grant of Atlanta, and was he sore. . . . "Playing Grant gives me a pain in the neck," Murphy said. . . . "He just keeps pit-patting the ball back and forth. To beat him you have to have the speed of Tilden or the endurance of Nurni, for he's just an automaton!"

Jiroh Satoh, Japanese ace, likes golf better than tennis. . . . He walked all over Forest Hills yesterday with a mangle niblick in his hand. . . . Vincent Richards, who knows a thing or two about tennis, insists Vines will win the tournament. . . . Jill Illingworth, official interpreter of the U. S. L. T. A. is a dead-ringer for Helen Jacobs, and people pester her to death by walking up, grabbing her

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7.—There's no use for the United States Lawn Tennis association to hold the men's national singles championship this year! It might just as well hand the trophy over to Fred Perry, England's great Davis Cup star, right now and save a lot of time and expense.

That's a pretty bold statement, but records of the Pacific Southwest Tennis Championships, which are to be held at the Los Angeles Tennis club Sept. 15 to 25, prove that Perry's virtually a cinch to become the 1933 champion of the United States. That is, of course, if he runs true to form.

Here's why. The Pacific Southwest tournament started in 1927. Big Bill Tilden won the men's singles title. Then he went east and won the national singles title. And that's the way it has gone ever since. Each of the Pacific Southwest champions have won the national title the following year.

Here's the record:

Pacific Champ
1927—Big Bill Tilden
1928—Henri Cochet.
1929—Johnny Doe.
1930—Ellsworth Vines.
1931—Ellsworth Vines.
1932—Fred Perry.

National Champ
1928—Big Bill Tilden.
1929—Henri Cochet.
1930—Johnny Doe.
1931—Ellsworth Vines.
1932—Ellsworth Vines.

The Pacific tournament, one of the largest in the world, has shown such growth that it has now to be considered the "Wimbledon of America." International champions of almost every nation have played here in the last six years, and tournament officials are anticipating an even larger list of stars for their seventh annual renewal.

Sponsored by the Tennis Patrons' Association of Southern California, the tournament was organized in 1926. In 1927 the association brought forth its first great effort, with Bill Tilden, Francis T. Hunter, Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, Manuel Alonso of Spain, Miss Kea Bouman of Holland and Mrs. Mollie Mallory competing. . . . As the tournament grew, other great players graced the local courts, including Miss Betty Nuttall, Mrs. Lawrence Harper, Edith Cross, Johnny Van Ryn, Wilmer Allison, Berkeley Bell, Cliff Sutter, Sidney B. Wood and Frank Shields. This year's tournament, as in the past, will be played at the Los Angeles Tennis club, the largest hard court club in the world.

GRIFFITHS KAYOED IN 4TH BY SHUCCO

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—(INS)—"Tuffy" Griffiths' spot in the pugilistic world was considerably dulled today. The Chicago heavyweight was knocked out here last night in four rounds by Tony Shucco of Boston.

Shucco, outweighed 10 pounds at 177, started the fourth round by flooring the Westerner for a nine count with a right to the jaw. Griffiths got up gamely, but another right dropped him for a count of five. Again "Tuffy" climbed to his feet and Shucco was punching him over the ropes with both hands when Griffiths' seconds threw in a towel.

hand, and congratulating her on her victory over Mrs. Moody. . . . George Lott went into his match with Barry Wood, onetime Harvard quarterback, expecting a tough fight. . . . After winning in straight sets Lott said: "He was a set-up. I was on his two-yard line all during the match!"

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—(INS) Attendants at Stanford hospital here guarded the room of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody today following an attempt of a stranger, bearing a camera, to take her picture.

The former net queen became almost hysterical and shouted for help when the stranger forced his way into her room. He ran from the hospital as attendants rushed to the room.

Mrs. Moody tried to leap from the bed, on which she must lie flat on her back for several weeks, but orthopedic apparatus attached to her right leg, restrained her movements.

"I know no newspaper photographer would do such a thing," Dr. C. A. Wills, father of Mrs. Moody, said. "It must have been a private photographer with no respect for the sick."

Dr. Wills was highly indignant at the incident and declared his daughter was greatly upset mentally and physically.

In a formal statement yesterday Dr. Wills described his daughter's back injury which resulted in her default in the National singles tennis finals to Helen Jacobs at Forest Hills.

Fracture on the root fibers of the right sciatic nerve, as they emerge through the opening between the fifth lumbar vertebra and the sacrum, has caused the suffering," he said.

Dr. Wills said it would be six months or longer before his daughter would be able to return to the courts. She must remain quiet in bed for at least three weeks.

Saints Work Diligently To Build Attack

Employing a combination of running and passing plays with Art Stranek and Walt Hendrie, backs, and Fred Erdhaus, a transfer end from Iowa, in the leading roles, Coach Bill Foote concentrated on his offense in Santa Ana. His football drill at Poly field today.

Three new candidates—"Bud" Woodill, John Wallace and M. Parnell—checked out equipment this morning, increasing the Saint roster to 78 members.

Erdhaus, a fine prospect from Creston, Ia., was on the receiving end of most of the forward passes fired by Stranek and Hendrie, and showed up impressively during the major part of the workout.

Although on certain passes his faking was none too good, he has stocky fingers like Jimmie Lash, star end of Coach "Tex" Oliver's 1931 Southern California champions.

Successfully weaving his way down the field despite poor support from linemen working with him on the "first string," Hendrie greatly pleased Foote, who plans to continue using the former end at left half. Paul Hales and Major Anderson took care of the other halfback position, with Waldo Smith at quarter, Stranek at full.

Ford Underwood, captain-elect, was moved from fullback back to his former left guard position, where he earned all-Coast league honors last season. Dick Geeting was at right guard on the No. 1 group, with Ray Hamilton at center, Bain Alexander at left tackle, Rogers at end, Roland Williams, a regular, has not shown up, and 1932 substitute, spent virtually all of the morning at right tackle on defense.

Richard Shepard and Erwin Youel, ends; Fred Townner and Roemer, tackles; Don Lentz and Russell Abbey, guards; and Al Halderman, center, played consistently on defense for the second group. Lefty Levens and Larry Velarde were among the many backs used on the No. 2 squad.

Less experienced players, composing approximately half of the Saint squad, were placed under the direction of "Tex" Harris, former high school and Jaycee player, at the east end of Poly field. Reese Greene, newly-appointed assistant, worked with Foote.

Tomorrow—Stanford.

Lutze Disqualified For Slugging Gus

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Nick Lutze, 202, lost the feature match of a wrestling card at the Olympic last night when he was disqualified for clugging Gus Sonnenberg, 200.

Sonnenberg, a last-minute substitution for Sammy Stein, was doddering on the verge of collapse when the referee stepped in and ordered Lutze to his corner. Each had won a fall when the match ended.

24,695 See L. A. Game, Set League Record

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Baseball attendance records were broken at Wrigley field last night when 24,695 fans turned out to witness Los Angeles defeat Hollywood in the first game of a double-header, opening their crucial series to determine leadership of the Pacific Coast league race.

Club officials said there were 15,231 paid admissions and 9,464 women and other passes. The crowd overflowed the grandstand and bleachers. Hundreds were forced to the sidelines.

The record crowd returned home, disappointed by the fog that forced cancellation of the second game during the fifth inning with Los Angeles ahead, 5 to 4.

GARDEN GROVE BACKFIELD ACE IN DONS' FOLD

Ray Hapes and Wilburn Anderson, highly regarded prep talent from Garden Grove and South Pasadena, respectively, were off the athletic market today, and safely installed as members of Santa Ana junior college's 1933 football squad.

Both checked out suits and joined the Santa Ana Dons at Poly field. Hapes, colorful quarterback who set the Orange league on fire several times while representing Garden Grove last fall; and Anderson, a 178-pound fullback transfer from South Pasadena, should fit snugly into a jayssee backfield already containing such tested talent as Fred "Porky" Bell, fleet colored boy; Harold Welty, who can pass, punt and run equally well; Jim Hall, blocking half and ex-captain; Bill Bouldin, Bill McDaniel and Nowcomer Earle Horton, Sam Tucker and others.

Bruce Martin of Garden Grove, a 156-pound brother of Phillip Martin, one-time regular guard for the Dons; George Robertson, husky center who has enrolled from Wichita, Kans.; Crawford Johnson, 175-pound center from South Pasadena; "Bud" Boyle, member of Santa Ana High's Coast league championship team; Elbert Bauman and Carl Smith also joined the Dons late yesterday.

Raymond Hoar, lanky center who saw considerable service last season, was the only returning letterman to report, joining Veterans Bell, Welty, Bouldin and Hall who answered the first call Tuesday.

On account of Freshman day, which requires virtually all of new students' time this week, Coach Cook and Ed Adams, his assistant, do not expect to accomplish a great deal until Monday, although the Don mentor officially opened daily drills on Poly field this afternoon.

New candidates will be showing up every day for the next week, Cook expecting to have around 60 men ready to buckle down to serious training for Santa Ana's opening game with the U. S. C. freshmen at the Municipal Bowl two weeks from Saturday night.

In a special student assembly at the Junior college tomorrow, Coach Cook is scheduled to give his annual football talk. It will be a general grid discussion in which Cook will outline Don chances in Eastern Junior College conference.

CUBS CALL CAMILLI FROM SACRAMENTO

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Dolph Camilli, hard-hitting first baseman recently purchased by the Chicago Cubs, will play with the Sacramento Pacific Coast league club Friday and wear a Cub uniform Sunday. That will be one of the fastest changes of scenery ever made by a Pacific Coast league player. Camilli will do it by boarding a plane from San Francisco Saturday morning and arriving here at midnight Saturday.

The questionnaire will be chiefly interested in finding out the integrity of racing promoters and their connections in the past in conducting race meetings, and also the proposed location of contemplated race tracks.

Chairman Carleton Burke of Los Angeles said the board would also hear reports of their inspectors concerning the pari-mutuel betting at the State Fair which closes here tomorrow.

GOOD SQUAD AT BROWN
Tuss McLaughry's first call for football candidates at Brown University brought out 50 would-be grid greats.

SHARKEY, 201, HARD AT WORK FOR BOUT

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—(INS)—Road work and two or three rounds of sparring were on Jack Sharkey's program today as the former heavyweight champion began training here for the 10-round bout Sept. 15 with Kingfish Levin.

JO CRUICKSHANK HOME: PLAN TO RETIRE HOLDS

Still clinging to her previously announced decision to retire from Eastern tennis competition, Santa Ana's Josephine Cruickshank returned home today from a two-months' tournament tour that was undoubtedly the most successful of her career.

Miss Cruickshank, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Cruickshank, arrived in Los Angeles on the California Limited in company with the British Wightman Cup stars, Dorothy Round and Mary Heeley, and also Elizabeth Ryan, an American who has lived abroad many years.

Miss Cruickshank moaned Jo Cruickshank tore here to spend a few days with her parents before going to Catalina for a series of exhibition matches with the British women.

Feeling well but frankly happy that the Eastern "grind" is over, Miss Cruickshank reiterated her determination to withdraw from further intensive tennis. The right to change her mind is a woman's prerogative, but the Santa Ana girl now intends to confine her tournament play to the Pacific Coast, preferably the Southern California district.

"I shall play tennis, of course," she said. "But the Eastern trips require so much time and money that I have decided to discontinue them and concentrate on my work." Miss Cruickshank is in the employ of a Los Angeles broker.

Miss Cruickshank did not see the finish of the much discussed match between Helen Wills Moody and Helen Jacobs, but said she believed Mrs. Moody had every right to default "if she thought she was going to faint." It is difficult to know what anyone would do under the circumstances, Miss Cruickshank added.

The Santa Ana was modest about her own accomplishments this season. She admitted, however, that the tour probably had been the most fruitful of any she ever made although she said her efforts early in the summer were disappointing.

Miss Cruickshank probably gave Helen Jacobs, National champion, her hardest match of the U. S. singles tournament. Miss Jacobs won, but was completely exhausted at the end, according to press dispatches, and well needed the rest which rain gave her the next few days.

The Pacific Southwest tournament, beginning at the Los Angeles Tennis club Sept. 15, will be the next and last on Miss Cruickshank's 1933 schedule. She will team up with Alice Marble of San Francisco in women's doubles. Her mixed doubles partner has not been announced.

STATE RACE BOARD TO QUIZ PROMOTERS

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 7.—(INS)—The California racing commission was scheduled to hold its first official meeting here today for the purpose of drawing up a questionnaire which will be sent promoters desiring licenses to operate pari-mutuel betting machines at race tracks.

The questionnaire will be chiefly interested in finding out the integrity of racing promoters and their connections in the past in conducting race meetings, and also the proposed location of contemplated race tracks.

Chairman Carleton Burke of Los Angeles said the board would also hear reports of their inspectors concerning the pari-mutuel betting at the State Fair which closes here tomorrow.

SHARKEY, 201, HARD AT WORK FOR BOUT

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—(INS)—Road work and two or three rounds of sparring were on Jack Sharkey's program today as the former heavyweight champion began training here for the 10-round bout Sept. 15 with Kingfish Levin.

HOOKS and SLIDES by WILLIAM BRAUCHER

"BIG BOY" SHIELDS
In his tender youth, tall Francis X. Shields gave every promise of becoming a national tennis champion and Davis Cup savior. And there was the expectation that he would be a popular leader of the racket men. The galleries liked him.

Now at Forest Hills, Shields at 23 still holds his place high in the public's fancy, but he is battling to come back.

CLOSE TO THE GOAL
In 1930 he was the finalist in the Nationals, only to lose to left-handed Johnny Doe. Again in 1931 he was finalist, and was winning a set when he slipped and fell, suffering a leg injury that prevented his continuing.

This year he turned on the power in the National indoor and served 19 aces in a match with Frank Bowden of Columbia. His tremendous batting was one of the most remarkable exhibitions of its kind ever witnessed. He was hailed as the Babe Ruth of tennis.

CALLS IT OFF
On the strength of his showing, he decided on an extended foreign campaign, including the French championships and the Wimbledon tournament. After being beaten by Boususs at Auteuil he suddenly took the first boat home. Reporters waited at the pier.

"Those stories that I came on the boat wearing a dress suit and without any baggage were the bunk," he replied to questions. "But as soon as I was beaten by Boususs I knew my game was off and there was no use continuing."

Shields is intensely nervous with a tendency to rush through a match. The crowd watches him with the same feeling of suspense that baseball fans suffer seeing Herman or Hack Wilson. There is always the chance of sustained greatness, and the impression he conveys is that he should win and, by carrying on, some day will.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
Freddie Miller, the feather champ, has bought a race horse. . . . Quorum. . . for one thousand berries. . . figuring it will be cheaper to buy hay for his nag than steak for the bookies. . . . Some Johnny has a good chance to win the National Amateur. . . . there are 13 of them entered. . . . and the Goodman and Fischer Johnnies seem to have the upper hand. . . . Leon Chagnon has turned out to be the Pirates' best relief hurler. . . . for a long stretch while the Pirate pitchers were wabbling, he averaged duty every other day. . . . but with that kid Birkhofer around he won't be so busy. . . . for Burly Birky won't need much relieving. . . . Chris Cagle, who used to do some classy work as halfback for the Army under Capt. John McEwan, has given his old coach a job. . . . as coach of Cagle's Brooklyn Dodgers pro grid team.

A German heavyweight named Walter Neusel is being groomed as "the new Schmeling." . . . Mel Ott and Bill Terry of the Giants were merely reprimanded for laying hands on Umpire McGraw. . . . which would have drawn a monetary rebuke in the American League. . . . The fact that Helen Jacobs had to take whisky capsules before her championship bout with Helen Wills Moody stirs this department to demand an investigation of the doping of tennis players. . . . after the pattern of the federal inquiry which found that many race horses were all capsuled up, too.

TORRANCE AND H. B. CLASH AT BOWL MONDAY

The Torrance-Huntington Beach series for the National Night league championship moves, bag and baggage, into Santa Ana next week.

After tomorrow night's game at Huntington Beach, for which some reserved seat tickets already have been sold, the clubs will come to the Municipal Bowl here Monday to renew their four-out-of-seven game series.

Furthermore—although a final decision naturally has not been made yet because the finalist is not known—it is understood unofficially that part of the Southern California championship series also will be run off here. Rialto, American league winner, is impatiently awaiting the outcome of the Torrance-Huntington Beach playoff.

Two reasons have been given for the transfer of the "little world series". One rated as cause by officials is the fear that heavy fog would necessitate postponements at Huntington Beach and Torrance. The fog was so dense last night that it would have been impossible to have held a game at either city. The second reason, soft-pedaled by league officers, is that the series figures to draw better crowds in Santa Ana which has adequate seating capacity and also is centrally located to the night baseball "populace". The first game of the big series drew only $229 at Huntington Beach and the second game at Torrance is said to have grossed well under the $200 figure.

Acting for the Torrance and Huntington Beach clubs, George Peterkin, league president, authorized the announcement that games would be held here next Monday and next Wednesday and "probably thereafter until the series is completed."

Peterkin, Mayor Paul Witmer and members of the Santa Ana night ball commission went to the Bowl and investigated the condition of the playing field which is being turfed for football. The outfield will not be in the best of shape but otherwise the grounds will be as good as ever.

Meanwhile, Huntington Beach club officials put on sale a block of 50 tickets, all reserved, at the Victor Walker sporting goods store here, for the third game at Huntington Beach tomorrow night. These all will be in choice locations.

HEALTH LECTURES PROVING POPULAR

Many compliments are being received by studio officials at KREG because of the new feature, "Health and Happiness," being sponsored by the Cal-Baden company. These programs are on the air every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 11:15 a. m. and Tuesday and Thursday at 2 p. m.

The programs feature Tom Westwood, health lecturer, well known both in the United States and Europe, in a series of talks that are entirely different in character from those usually given over the radio. Westwood is widely traveled and tells many fascinating stories of his experiences illustrating salient points of his discussions.

GUEST ARTISTS ON SPANISH HOUR

Tonight's Spanish program to be broadcast from KREG between 9 and 10:30 o'clock will feature a group of exceptional artists. This program is broadcast under direction of Senor Enrique Laurent, well known Southern California Spanish announcer.

Many of these guest artists appearing on tonight's program are leading vocal and instrumental artists in Mexico and have appeared on the stage, in concert and in motion pictures in the United States. The Cisneros-Lopez trio also will appear on the program.

KREG NOTES

Joseph Ames Hennessey, prominent radio dietitian, is continuing his health talks each Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 9:35 a. m. These talks offer interesting explanations of the action of the digestive system and explain causes and effects of digestive troubles.

The absence of Joe Cummings, popular tenor, last Tuesday night from his regular broadcast, was due to injuries received in an accident. Cummings' condition is not serious but will keep him from the studio for some time, it is believed.

The music of Rudy Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees will be featured exclusively on "Tiernan's Typewriter Tempos" tonight at 6:15 o'clock. Some of his special arrangements will include "I've Got to Sing a Torch Song" and "Shadow Waltz," from the current production "Gold Diggers of 1933." "I Can't Remember" and "I Lay Me Down to Sleep." Tonight's broadcast will be especially for those who are preparing for the forthcoming school term and will include many items of special interest.

A 20-minute broadcast entitled "Songs of Spain and Old Mexico," is scheduled on KREG tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, featuring well known Spanish and Mexican masterpieces as played and sung by prominent orchestras and vocalists of those countries.

"Into Tomorrow," a story which combines present day actualities with the unrealities of ghosts, will be told by Harold P. Burdick in the second of the new "Do You Believe in Ghosts?" narrative over an NBC network, including KFI, from 7:15 to 7:30 tonight.

A lively program of classics which manage to retain their place in serious literature in spite of their lightness of mood is offered in the Standard Symphony Hour which Alfred Hertz will present over an NBC network, including KFI, from 8 to 9 o'clock tonight. Offering contrasts to the gay compositions which follow, the orchestra opens the concert with the program's one sombre note, Beethoven's great overture, "Coriolanus."

Dr. Walter R. Miles, professor of psychology at Yale university, will be the speaker on the Educational Feature program to be broadcast, 10:40-11 a. m. Friday over KFI. Dr. Miles, who is the author of many distinguished works relating to functions of the brain and also the inventor of instruments for the study of pursuit coordination, has chosen for the subject of his discussion, "The Maintenance of Our Mental Abilities."

Will the civilian be the victim of the next war? This question, which has been answered in the affirmative by some prominent militarists and scientists, will be reviewed at 1:30 p. m. Friday, over an NBC network, including KREG and KFSD, by Lieut. Col. Anson F. Robinson, 305th Infantry; Rev. Jerome Harris, curate of St. Ignatius church, New York, and Major Alexander Timm, D. S. C., Medical Reserve corps. They will be interviewed by Elmerford L. Carr, whose brilliant service record in the navy during the World war won him citations by three U. S. admirals.

RUSH PRISONERS TO ISLAND AFTER GUN SMUGGLING REPORT

Harry E. Dean and Joseph F. Burke, mail robbers under sentence of 25 years each and temporarily held in the Orange county jail, were on their way to McNeil's island today under heavy guard following conflicting reports to federal authorities that Dean had sought to have gun smuggled to him in the local jail.

Jail officials today emphatically denied any knowledge of the gun smuggling report and said that their only connection with the case was in turning over the two men to Deputy United States Marshal James Rice and a heavily armed guard last night.

The report from Los Angeles was that Dean in attempting to obtain the gun threatened to "get" Postoffice "—for E. H. Kline, whose investigations figured largely in the conviction of the men for holding up a mail truck at the Arcadia station last January 3.

DAUGHTER OF SANTA ANANS IN HURRICANE

Anxiety felt in Santa Ana for the safety of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Beer and children, Billie and Dorothy Lee, formerly of Santa Ana and now living in Brownsville, Texas, was dispelled yesterday with the receipt of a telegram that the family escaped injury in the hurricane several days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Diehl, 2309 Bonnie Brae, parents of Mrs. Beer, were notified that although the family had temporarily moved to Santa Antonio because their house was caved in, none of the family was hurt.

10 INCHES OF RAIN FLOODS RIO GRANDE

EDINBURG, Texas, Sept. 7.—(UP)—New rises in the Rio Grande after a 10-inch rain in the San Juan valley of northern Mexico threatened the hurricane-swept lower Rio Grande valley today.

The government hydrographer at Roma, Texas, warned residents from lowlands. The Rio Grande was up 15 feet there and rising at the rate of six inches an hour.

Howard Bonham, midwest Red Cross official, announced an incomplete survey of the storm area showed: 24 dead; 100 seriously injured; 400 with minor hurts; 3750 destitute families; 400 homes destroyed; 8000 homes damaged.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Mary Pickford was back home today at Pickfair, the luxurious house she and Douglas Fairbanks built long before the collapse of their epic romance.

The house is hers for keeps, she announced as she returned from an extended trip to New York. Its removal from the sale columns, however, does not mean she and her husband have patched up their marital differences. She would not comment about a possible divorce.

"When the time comes to talk I will talk," she said.

PHYSICIANS REPORT ROLPH TO RECOVER

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Physicians for governor James Rolph Jr. predicted today that he would recover, barring an unexpected setback.

In the most optimistic statement since the governor was taken to St. Francis hospital Saturday with bronchial pneumonia, Dr. John Galloway said:

"Unless conditions change for the worse, a situation we do not expect, Governor Rolph, we believe, is safely on the road to recovery." The governor coughed less frequently. He ate a light meal in the evening.

FOOD COSTS AT COUNTY JAIL ATTACKED AT MAYOR'S SESSION; RADIO, WELFARE WORK TAKEN UP

Cost of feeding prisoners at the county jail, county-wide radio service, welfare work and other matters of civic interest were included in the discussion at the informal meeting of county mayors held last night at McFarland's cafe.

A committee composed of W. L. Hale, Fullerton; Elmer Hughes, Seal Beach; Frank Champion, Laguna Beach; and Elson Conrad, Huntington Beach, was appointed to draft resolutions expressing the sentiment of the mayors to be presented at the meeting of the Orange County League of Municipalities in Seal Beach September 25.

Unanimous approval of a motion condemning the present system of paying for meals of prisoners housed in the county jail was given. The cities are protesting the practice of charging city prisoners 20 cents per meal instead of the 14-cent rate for county inmates.

Although there was no discussion on the question of having

SEEKING MAN WHO THREATENED PRIEST

ARDMORE, Pa., Sept. 7.—(UP)—Police today sought a "man with a nose" on charge of threatening to bomb the residence of Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, unless the head of the diocese of Philadelphia paid him $50,000.

Identification of the man, described by police as a maniac, was made by Thomas Frederick, a servant in the cardinal's home at Merion.

"A man has been loitering around the estate for the last three weeks," Frederick told the United Press, "and I believe he is the man who sent the threatening letter because he told me last night he would be back tonight for the $50,000."

Frederick said the "fanatic" had the idea the cardinal had made him lose some money.

RAYMER SAYS NO SALARIES PAID WITH TAXPAYERS' FUNDS

George Raymer, secretary of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce and NRA administrator in Santa Ana, asserted today that not one cent of salaries for anyone at the chamber of commerce offices had ever been paid with taxpayers funds.

The statement was made in connection with comment on an article in Wednesday's Register concerning the bill allowed by the city for the recent NRA campaign in Santa Ana, which Raymer said gave the impression that taxpayers' funds were being used or had been used to pay chamber of commerce salaries. Raymer also explained that an item of $90 for stenographic services which appeared on the bill, which was prepared by girls in his office, had been cut from the bill by himself before presentation to the city, because he felt the chamber should donate that item to the campaign.

RENEWAL OF FAITH DECLARED NEED BY LIONS CLUB SPEAKER

ORANGE, Sept. 7.—That the possession of a million dollars by each individual in the United States would not prove a panacea for present ills, but rather the condition would bring about greater evils than now exist, was one of the statements made by H. V. Adams, head of the speakers' bureau of the Security First National Bank of Los Angeles, at a meeting of the Lions club yesterday.

Adams took for his topic, "If I Had a Million." In his discussion of the hypothesis of a million for each American, the speaker brought out that if such were the case, labor would be at a premium, there would be no one to do the necessary but sometimes disagreeable tasks and that as a consequence unsanitary conditions would prevail, with disease and death in their wake.

Trailing conditions which he said would follow the possession of a million dollars by everyone, Adams said that one of the results would be the barter of labor, and that labor finally would take the place of money as an exchange medium.

When nature makes an equal distribution of climate and soil conditions then may we expect an equal distribution of wealth, said the speaker.

The supreme need of the hour, Adams declared, is not a larger navy or army but a renewal of a faith which has its basis on religious belief. He declared that the statement was quoted from the Wall Street Journal.

There is no situation in which the American people have been placed in which they have not won out and in combating problems, courage is needed, a courage which is based on faith. The same courage and faith is needed now which was required when Columbus made his uncharted way across the stormy waters of the Atlantic, the faith which moves the world, he declared.

Adams brought out that if a man cannot save 50 cents a week on a salary of 20 dollars he cannot save one dollar a week if he receives $50.

"We don't need more dollars so much as we need more sense," said Adams. "We must learn how to use prosperous times as against future needs. Economic conditions can't make or break us. It is the mental attitude toward a condition which counts. We need help from the inside rather than help from the outside."

For their home in Grant's Pass, Ore., concluding a several weeks' visit here with Mrs. Kilgore's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Bivens, South Orange street, Mr. and Mrs. Bivens accompanied their daughter and grandson as far as Santa Barbara. Mrs. Kilgore and Junior are making the trip from there to Oregon in company with friends.

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES

What's Willie Up To?

By MARTIN

Wee Coppy surely had good aim. Said he, "This is a dandy game. Just stay around, and watch me, lads. I'm having lots of fun."

"I've made each baby doll go flop except just one, and I won't stop until I win a prize by knocking over every one."

"What is the prize?" asked Doty. "Gee, I hope that you'll share it with me. In fact I think you ought to share with every Tynmite."

"I will," said Coppy. "Don't you fret. You'll all get part of what I get." And then he took three more baseballs and threw with all his might.

"Huray!" All of the Tynmites roared. "At last, three baby dolls you've scored," exclaimed the owner of the stand. "And now you get a prize."

"Six lollipops I'll give you, son, 'cause dandy throwing you have done. Just wait until you see them. They're a treat for youngsters' eyes."

He opened up a box and then the Tynmites all cheered again. "Just help yourselves," the kind man said. "They'll last you through the day."

"Please give the diver one, as well," said Goldy. "'Cause he treats us swell." The diver said, "Twas kind of you to think of me that way."

The whole bunch walked around a while and then the diver, with a smile, cried, "There's a greased pig. Here's where I give all of you a treat."

"I'll ride that pig. At least, I'll try. I may be tossed up to the sky. Gee, if I am, I only hope that I land on my feet."

Just then the greased pig ran up near. The diver grabbed and cried, "Come here." He managed to get on the pig, and then came lots of fun.

The porker scampered 'cross the ground and made the diver slip around. "My, what a sight," cried Goldy. "How that funny pig can run!"

It's foolishness to think that soap or perfume can kill body odor, when any doctor can tell you that it can't. A full quart of perspiration every day of your life. There is only one deodorant guaranteed to stop body odor, safely, from the moment you apply it. In the morning till evening at least—and that's PERSTIK. If it fails to do this, you get your money back.

A few strokes of PERSTIK under the arms (and on sanitary pad) and you worry is over. Perstik is a pure white, greasy stick, in a handsome black-and-ivory plastic case. Costs but 50c and lasts for months. All reliable department stores and drugists sell genuine Perstik. Beware of cheap Housekeeping's famous deal of approval. GETS 250 DAYS, $500 FINE ON LIQUOR COUNT

LAGUNA BEACH, Sept. 7.—Earl Webber Grundy, 28, was fined a total of $500 and sentenced to serve 250 days in the county jail by Judge C. C. Cravath in the justice court here yesterday, following his conviction on counts of sale and possession of intoxicating liquor. Grundy was arrested August 30 by Deputy Sheriff A. L. Ellis, E. E. Perry and C. W. Ragle. Graupenberger testified that he paid $1 for a pint of liquor. Dr. Elizabeth W. Tock testified to the alcoholic contents of two bottles, one of which was used for evidence in the possession case.

The case was delayed for about 20 minutes while Grundy was awaiting the arrival of an attorney. His mother went out to telephone and returning to the court, told Judge Cravath that she was instructed by the attorney to let them go ahead with their case and not to let the defendant go on the stand. Deputy District Attorney James L. Davis, for the prosecution, and Judge Cravath told Grundy several times that the case was actually being tried and asked him repeatedly if he didn't want to put in a defense. The lawyer says not to do anything, repeated the mother.

After sentence had been pronounced, Grundy asked who would take care of his wife and baby if he went to jail.

"You should have thought of that before you started bootlegging," said the court.

Henry McKinley, arrested last week by Police Chief Abe W. Johnson and three officers in a raid on his home, paid a fine of $150 in police court on a possession charge.

He was arrested in a back street by Officers Jack Blakeney and H. D. Allanson. He will be allowed to pay the fine at the rate of $5 per week.

ANNE AUSTIN author of 'THE BLACK PIGEON' 'THE AVENTING PARROT' 'MURDER BACKSTAIRS'

—said I needed my rest. So I allowed myself to be carried away. "And yesterday—Friday?" Dundee demanded tensely. For Friday she had been driven to making her last will and testament. "She was home all day, but about half-past four Mr. Drake came. Lydia said slowly, as if she too were wondering. "She was awfully restless, couldn't settle or eat. I ought to have suspected something, but she was often like that—late. Mr. Drake stayed about an hour. I didn't see him leave, because I was cooking Nita's dinner. . . . But little good it did, because she didn't eat it, so there was plenty for Mr. Sprague when he dropped in about seven."

"Did Sprague spend the evening?" "I guess so, but I don't know. Nita made me drive into town for a picture show. She was in bed when I got back, and—but she checked herself hastily.

"Did Nita seem strange—troubled, excited? Did she look as if she'd been crying?" Dundee prodded.

"I didn't see her," the maid acknowledged. "I knocked on her door, but she told me to go on to bed, that she wouldn't need me. But now I think back, her voice sounded queer. . . . Maybe she was crying, but I don't know."

"And this morning?" "She seemed all right—just excited about the party, and I heard about my tooth. Mr. Ralph Hammond came to make the estimates on finishing up the top floor, and we left him here."

"What was her attitude toward Mr. Miles when he dropped in on her this morning?" Dundee interrupted.

"Mr. Miles?" Lydia echoed, frowning. "He wasn't here this morning, or if he was, it was after Nita and I left for town."

"While the maid was packing a bag, which Dundee would examine before she was allowed to take it away with her, the detective rejoined Tracey Miles, who had made himself as comfortable as possible in the living room.

"Lydia's going with you, and is grateful for your wife's kindness," Dundee informed him, and felt his heart warm of the homesome, egotistical, little cherub of a man when he saw how Miles' face lit up with real pleasure. "By the way, Miles, you saw Ralph Hammond when you called here this morning, didn't you?"

"Yes," Miles answered, with some reluctance. "He answered the door when I rang and told me Lydia and Nita had gone into town."

"Mr. Miles," Dundee began slowly, throwing friendliness and persuasion into his voice. "I know how all you folks stick together, but I'd appreciate it a lot if you'd tell me frankly whether you noticed anything unusual in Hammond's manner this morning."

FINANCIAL AND MARKET NEWS

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Lack of demand for stocks today resulted in a moderate decline after an early advance. Dealings were exceptionally light.

At irregular opening was followed by a pickup led by oils which at one time advanced 2 points. The advance failed to attract outside buying and selling followed. Only moderate pressure was exerted against the advance.

There was nothing in the news to account for a selloff. Steel news included the Iron Age Weekly Review which reported operations for the industry at 45 per cent of capacity, against 47 per cent in the previous week and 53 per cent three weeks ago. This had been anticipated. However, a decline in steel common persisted throughout the day and the stock broke below 52, against a previous high of 52 1/2. Other steels were down with it.

Other major indices were mixed. Electrical output made a new high as compared with 1932 than the preceding week, while automobile production, including light trucks, was up nearly 13 per cent for August as compared with a year ago for the first 8 companies to report.

A PROGRESSIVE INDIAN RULER

The Gaekwar of Baroda is the ruler of one of the largest of the Indian provinces. He is reputed to be the most progressive and the wealthiest of the native rulers. He has traveled widely, acquainted himself thoroughly with the ways of other peoples, and has brought his enlightened mind to bear upon the pressing problems of India.

Recently he made an address at the second Parliament of Religions held in connection with the Century of Progress. This Congress is represented by over 100 sects of the 11 great creeds of humanity, and will continue for 22 days. Its object is to express the likeness of all the great faiths of mankind.

The Gaekwar, unlike many India leaders, is a realist. Mysticism has no attraction for him. Back to reality and to human values is his platform. Horse sense, he says, is marking the Indian mind. All over the world, he affirms, religion is being challenged by the ethical ideal of mankind. Religion that is unethical is a curse, not a boon. "There is no God higher than the truth," he adds, "no beauty without harmony. Our economic and political problems are ethical and spiritual problems."

This is a voice rarely heard from India. It indicates that Western thought is finding its way into India. That thought is destined to break down caste which has been the curse of India for thousands of years. It is destined to banish that introspective mood which centers all problems within, and blinks all those external problems which have made India a land of gloom and misery.

This new attitude springing up in India is much to be desired. But there is the danger that it may be developed at the expense of that finer spiritual insight which has been the mark of Indian life. Empire State buildings, great water dams, a prodigious material development, are not marks of an unalloyed prosperity, as we happen to know from the experience of the last four years. The Gaekwar wisely looks for a hierarchy of service out of which the rights of the common man will emerge and the demand for backward peoples for a place in the sun will be granted.

Our practicality needs to be shot through with a larger amount of the service motive to make it minister to the deepest needs of the people. This is the message that the Gaekwar brings right to the heart of an exposition which is displaying the most wonderful material conquests that the world has ever seen. The Oriental king who looked over his great empire, and exclaimed, "Is this not great Babylon which I have built with the might of my power and for the glory of my majesty?" lost out because he failed to recognize the motive which the Gaekwar brought as a message to the most practical and the most materially successful nations of all time.

New York writer has discovered that 10-cent speakeasy flourish in Greenwich Village. Does that explain the origin of that famous song, "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime?"

NATIONAL RECOVERY ACTS IN OTHER COUNTRIES

A news report from Holland to the effect that that country is centralizing many of the farm support agencies started in the last few years into one farm crisis relief fund, which will have power to regulate production, trade prices, and the export of many products, may remind us that the NRA is not confined to this country alone. As a matter of fact, not only Holland, but most of the European countries, as well as Canada, have enacted laws to control industry and to subsidize the farmer. Many of them are even more drastic than our own, and have greater governmental sanctions behind them than our own NRA.

It does not occur to most Americans that the authority given to the President is permissive, and that there are very few if any sanctions behind the Recovery Act. The only force behind the policies adopted by the NRA is the force of public opinion. Mr. Roosevelt is permitted to make contracts, known as codes, with individuals and groups of individuals. In consideration of that contract Mr. Roosevelt gives a blue eagle to the party of the second part. If the party of the second part does not observe the contract, Mr. Roosevelt can take back the blue eagle. There it ends so far as the government is concerned. Public opinion is supposed to do the rest through the members of the consumers' group of the NRA. There is, to be sure, the licensing provision of the Recovery Act. But even that has been framed in such a way as to make it well-nigh impossible for the courts to block the working of the act.

The whole movement is designed to organize public opinion into such a closely compacted group that the welfare of all—industry, labor and the consuming public—will be served. Personal liberty, theoretically and practically, has not been infringed upon legally. Incidentally, speaking of personal liberty in modern society and its regulation, it may be recalled that ancient Rome had rigid laws to regulate personal liberty 200 B. C. The number of guests at parties, funeral costs, and even the color of women's clothes were fixed by law.

But the chief point is that almost every industrial nation is coping with the depression problem in very much the same way as we are. In details their laws vary. But the object is to increase the ability of the masses to consume by regulating production, raising wages, and raising prices. What will come out of it all may still be in the lap of the gods. But it is the only plan which offers a way out of the present depression brought on by an earlier industrial chaos.

VISCOUNT GREY OF GREAT BRITAIN

In the death of Viscount Grey of Great Britain, the world loses one of its great leaders and outstanding characters.

While for the last few years of the Viscount's life, his physical infirmities and especially his blindness, removed him from the field of active life, which had been his since he was a young man, yet he has made such a contribution to the activities of public life during the years, that his place is quite firmly fixed on history's pages.

The Viscount is an illustration, again, of how public men in Great Britain become of increasing value as they retain their places in public life. And by their preparation, training and experience, they are able, with an equal amount of genius and talent, compared with American men, to give much larger and more valuable service than men are able, as a rule, in this country, because of their inability to stay in public life on account of the handicaps of our political system.

He was born in 1862, and in 1885, at the age of 23, he became a member of Parliament, and he continued in that capacity until 1916, a period of 31 years. He then became a member of the House of Lords, and has served, therefore, in Parliament continuously.

The relationship which existed between France and Great Britain, and between Russia and Great Britain, which made possible the alliance against Germany in 1914, is accredited to Viscount Grey. He was opposed to war and actively aided, after the war, in organizing the League of Nations. He was only driven to supporting the war by the violation of the neutrality of Belgium.

He was one of the leaders of the Liberal party, and differed very radically with Lloyd George over the government's attitude upon the general strike, which led almost to the dissolution of the party. He organized a group of his own, and from that day the Liberals have not been a very serious factor in British parliamentary life.

His anxiety to make the League of Nations a firm compact led him to favor Russia and Germany each becoming a member, and he gave unstinted praise to the Kellogg-Briand peace pact. Probably into the grave will go now all of the political animosities which were so manifested between him and the little Welsh leader, and the outstanding contributions to England's good and to the people's cause will be remembered, and will be the things, which, in turn, the young men entering public life in Great Britain will aim to emulate.

Raconteur And Boniface

Christian Science Monitor

Simeon Ford, whose passing is announced, was not only a notable hotelkeeper in New York but, during the '90's and for more than a decade after, as much one of that city's institutions as the handsome cabs of Fifth Avenue and the Aquarium at the Battery.

Chairmen of banquets considered that evening lost if Ford could not be secured as the star postprandial speaker. Excessively tall, exceedingly thin, his preternaturally solemn appearance added piquancy to an apparently inexhaustible flow of homely wit. How many people ate luncheon and dinner at the old, ramshackle but comfortable Grand Union Hotel, which he owned and managed for thirty-odd years, in order to boast ever afterward that its lanky proprietor had stopped to chat with them as he passed among the tables no one will ever know. They would probably form a good-sized town.

Originally of Indiana, that cradle of humorists and statesmen, he came to New York City where he hung out a lawyer's shingle for a time, then drifted into the hotel business. Perhaps his funniest anecdotes dealt with his experiences as hotelkeeper.

The Grand Union Hotel stood opposite the railroad terminus then known to all New Yorkers as the Grand Central Depot. Ford claimed his hostelry did so much business because it was "the haven for hayseeds who came across the street from the Grand Central because they were terrified of hack drivers."

At a farewell dinner given him at the Waldorf-Astoria he told a crowd of fellow bonifaces:

"I may have sinned, but I never charged the public for bread and butter."

Incidentally, like many other artists, his farewell appearances were many. In 1912 he made one which he called "Farewell Address No. 26."

Simeon Ford loved people and took kindly interest in his guests notwithstanding occasional sly digs at the idiosyncrasies of hotel patrons. He belonged to a period when proprietors, long after they became rich, might still be seen out on the sidewalk inspecting a wagonload of vegetables. Those were the days when hotels were yet unacquainted with strictly impersonal college-bred dietitians versed in vitamins, and the slogan that the guest is always right was possibly less insistent. And still the guest was hospitably served and the fare, if memory serves, was more than passing good.

Los Angeles County Wronged

Glendale News-Press

Accompanying the allotment of $15,000,000 to California from federal sources, the sum to be spent on the highways, with particular reference to unemployment, there are certain stipulations. In giving this county the amount he seems to regard as its due, Lee Kelly, state director of public works, has ignored these conditions. Moreover he expresses the wish that no protest about this obvious unfairness shall be sent to Washington.

There are evidences that this wish will not be respected. To respect it would be a wrong to the county, and anyhow, Washington might be glad to be told what is going on here.

One of the conditions ignored is that the apportionment of the fund among counties shall be based on unemployment. Nearly half of the unemployed in this state are in Los Angeles county. A large percentage of these belong to the city of Los Angeles. The local excess of unemployment is due to the surge of population in this direction, bringing with it the undesirable as well as the desirable. Whatever the history back of them, the unemployed are here, and to care for them is a duty that cannot be evaded.

Yet Kelly would allow Los Angeles county only 10 per cent of the fund, grudgingly increasing this upon demand, but not increasing it to a just total. And he would like nothing said about it. However, the liberty is taken of mentioning it even at the risk of paining Kelly.

More Truth Than Poetry

A SIGH OF REGRET

I was fond of the masterful villain
Who lived in an earlier time—
A man who had marvelous skill in
All manner of hair-raising crimes.
He always was deft with a dagger,
All poisons he skillfully used,
And he carried things off with a swag,
That left me enrapt and enthused.

Rough gangsters today do the killing
One sees on the screen and the stage,
And they're never sufficiently thrilling,
Not even when picturing rage.
What I like are the lads with mustaches
Who utter grim guttural threats
While carefully flipping the ashes
From the ends of their slim cigarettes.

These gentry, with eyebrows like Nero's—
If Nero had eyebrows at all—
Were always too much for the heroes
Who fought with their backs to the wall.
They were masters of cultured investive,
They always were smartly attired,
And when shot by a slinking detective
They merely said "Poiled!" and expired.

The villains today are too vulgar,
Too given to snarls of crude rage;
They roar like the knife-wielding Bulgar
Of the old comic opera stage.
They never made blunders in grammar,
Did the crooks of the gay days of yore;
They lent a true grace to the drummer—
Too bad we shall see them no more.

Little Benny's Note Book

Saturday afternoon pop took me to see the circus parade, the last thing that went passed being a band with red coats and gold tassels playing different instruments, me saying, G, pop, which thing do you think would be the best to play if you was in a band and had your choice.

That's a serious question and deserves a serious answer, and none occurs to me at the moment, pop said.

Meaning he didn't know, and I said, Well how about the trombone, it must be fun pushing that thing out and back.

It must be exercise, too, thus combining certain practical advantages with purely emotional ones, pop said, and I said, The drum mite be a good one to pick, you probably don't have to study so hard to learn to play the drum.

Quite true, in fact I've heard it said that some drummers have gone quite far in their profession with practically no ear for music, so that their life is one grand blurt with a fairly good salary, pop said.

Besides, a drum is certainly easier on the face than a trombone, he said, and I said, Well which do you think would be the best to play, the fire or the big bass horn?

Well, a fire is the lightest load of all the instruments and at the same time makes the most noise in comparison with its size, and yet the big bass horn imparts a certain dignity to the man marching behind it and also no doubt a beautiful blind faith that he won't trip over a cobblestone, pop said, and I said, And how about the drum major, all he has to do is just keep in step with his knees stiff and get the credit for everything.

You phrase it very justly, how about the drum major? pop said, and I said, But anyways maybe the kids marching in back and thinking their grate have the best time of anybody, and pop said, Maybe they do.

Wich maybe they do.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

DON'T NAZIFY THE NRA

Haste without hysteria! Mass purpose without mob passions! These objectives must dominate the national execution of the national recovery program.

We must not Nazify the NRA! I have said already this week that the higher wage and shorter hour appeal of the President is the beating heart of the recovery program and that to this aspect of the program we can give ourselves with something of the devotion that animated men in the crusades of earlier centuries and steered our nerves in the grim days of war.

Today I plead that we use these figures of crusade and war with the utmost care. In this drive against depression we want that exaltation and unity of spirit which, in war time, taps new levels of energy and enables a people to do the impossible.

But we want to avoid, as we would the plague, any orgy of threats, intimidations, mob-made slacker lists, hoodlanged round-ups, economic Ku Kluxism and the whole round of national riding that zealots could so easily get under way in their sincere but shortsighted backing of the NRA drive.

As I pointed out earlier this week, there are points in the economic set-up of the country at which it is no easy matter for men to adopt over-night the higher wage and shorter hour program, as, for instance, those smaller enterprises that do not have ample reserves, adequate credit and the chance at great volume of sales over which to spread the costs of production or distribution.

These cases merit the utmost of sympathetic consideration; they must not be damned as traitors in the interim while they and the government are devoting ways and means that shall make practical their whole-hearted support of the recovery program.

I do not suggest that any enterprise be exempted from the call of the Blue Eagle; I suggest only that, as a people, we proceed to the application of the NRA program with that careful consideration which will insure its renewing instead of ruining the specific enterprise to which it is applied.

This is not a criticism of the program but a cautionary word as to its execution. It is a cautionary word that should be spoken even more to the people as a whole than to the men at the helm in Washington.

The other night I expressed concern, over a coast to coast radio chain, respecting the difficulties the smaller enterprises may face in following the recovery program. That this sort of question is not considered antagonistic to the national recovery drive is evidenced by the fact that three days later General Johnson raised the same issue in his frank admission that ways and means must be found, either through the banks or through the government, to finance such enterprises during that transition period, of which I spoke earlier this week, while the spread of buying power is getting thoroughly under way.

We can act with national unity without aping the Nazi blunder of mass terrorism. We must not blacken the high purpose of the NRA with the blunder of hysterical boycotts! Copyright, 1933, McClure Newspaper Syn.

Our Children

By Angelo Patri

DON'T SPUTTER

It is a mistake to begin talking loudly the instant a child annoys you. Your sputtering distracts the child and sets his nerves on edge. He is not listening to you. He is worrying about what you are going to do. Fear is rising within him, shaking his control, upsetting his reason and his judgment. If you keep your sputtering up too long he will burst into tears or go into a tantrum.

Sputtering is our way of relieving ourselves of the tension that fright, shock or sudden hurt brings upon us. It is a natural reaction. When a child drops a cup, when he falls downstairs, when he screams as though in agony, we jump, tense ourselves in a hard knot and run to the rescue. On the way we do what we can to relieve ourselves of the pressure that hurts us so and we sputter endlessly.

"Was ever there such a child? Goodness me, what will you be doing next? Stand up. Where are you hurt? Did you cut yourself? I never saw such a child. Never. Come here. Stand still. How can I help you if you don't stand still? If you say another word I'll smack you well. There isn't a thing the matter with you but pure badness. Now you go sit over there and don't you let me hear a whimper out of you until it is time for you to go to bed. I never saw such a child."

That's just sputtering. It doesn't do us a bit of good. It won't mend what is broken. It won't remove the bump from his head nor will it heal the cut on his hand. It will excite him, irritate him, and drive him into making a scene.

It is trying on one's nerves to have a restless child going about the house knocking things down, bumping himself on the corners of things and making mistakes on the stairs and howling in consequence. But babbling at him won't teach him to control his movements and his behavior. It results in the opposite. He takes color from your behavior always and if you jump up and down and scold and threaten and sputter he makes the same sort of demonstration in his way.

Try to get and keep control of yourself when something goes wrong. Learn to keep your tongue still in your mouth. Move with power but with silent power. The best engines are quieter than the cheap ones. The strong mind moves with the silent strength and sureness of a fine machine. The excited child feels the power and the certain, through the silence and he is accordingly quieted and led toward the desired end. If the mind is sputtering, uncertain, the effect on the child is in correspondence to that mood.

A torrent of words drowns thought. You can't hear yourself think. In an emergency you need to think. If you are all heated up and sputtering over every little thing that comes along you are going to train your mind, which in many respects is like a machine, to certain fixed reactions, to useless scolding. If you keep control over your nerves, your words, your movements will calm and direct the child always and you need fear no emergency.

There is another reason not so scientific. You will not do and say things for which you will be sorry ever after if you hold your tongue.

(Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.)
